World Book Day

As world Book Day is approaching, we wanted to share some more details about the day.

Dress Up

As previously advised, children can come to school dressed as a book character of their choice. This isn't intended to elicit any worry so if your child doesn't want to dress up then please send them to school in their comfy reading clothes or wearing something that has a book character on it. The aim is to promote joy around reading so we don't want children to feel uncomfortable or for parents and carers to feel they need to spend a lot of money on a costume. Anything goes!

Bring your favourite Book

We would love children to bring a favourite book into school. Children will have time to share their books with friends or their book might be read aloud to the class. Please write children's names inside the books so they are kept safe. We can't wait to see what children's favourite's are!

Book Swap

In light of its popularity at the Big Book Bonanza, we'll be holding another Book Swap on World Book Day. Please start sending book swaps books into school from Monday 2nd March. Children can bring in a maximum of 3 books to swap and the book swap will be held during the school day.

Exciting classroom activities

Children will be taking part in fun activities throughout the day and this will be different depending on the class so ask your child what they've been doing in class to celebrate World Book Day! It might be a book quiz, a virtual author visit or book tasting.

World Book Day vouchers

We will give children their World Book Day voucher on Wednesday 11th March so they can use them at the Roving Book Shop which is visiting school. All children will visit the bookshop during the school day so they can spend their voucher along with any money they might bring in from home.

The book shop will be open from 8:30 – 4pm so that you can visit with your child before or after school if you wish. The fabulous author Gareth P. Jones will also be in school on 11th March sharing some of his much-loved books with the children in entertaining workshops. All children from Nursery – Year 6 will have a session. For a taste of Gareth's work, watch Rubunzel being read on Milkshake here!
